
Message from the Director

Prof. José Capmany
Director of iTEAM
Universitat Politècnica de València

Welcome to this fifth issue of WAVES. In line with our tradition and the multidisciplinary character of our institute it presents a selection of our finest research results covering a wide range of topics which range from strict basic telecommunications technologies to the most advanced wireless applications and multimedia based services without leaving out more transmission related topics.

WAVES is compromised more than ever to consolidate as one of the most important dissemination fora for telecommunications research in our country. In this sense topic selection, peer-reviewing and the inclusion of contributions from colleagues outside ITEAM are now well established pillars of our editorial policy which we aim to extend and improve by continuously considering new suggestions to increase the interest of our extending readership. One example is the now acclaimed highlights section which included in the former issues for the first time is here to stay.

Five years is a nice time figure to consider that many things and practices have been learned and done correctly, helping to consolidate WAVES, but also to consider that many others need to be learned and implemented in the future.

Enjoy!
